

If a state chooses to have tougher laws than the rest of the country, it's best to let the people of the state keep their tough laws. Overturning our do-not-call policy is basically a way of ignoring our choice of law. Since our policy does not apply to other states, there should be no problem when we keep our laws strict.

Thank you for reading.